

University of California at Berkeley School of Law (Boalt Hall), the Thelton E. Henderson Center for Social Justice and Boalt Hall's Center for Criminal Justice host:

Guantánamo: How Should We Respond?

Thursday, October 5, 2006
U.C. Berkeley School of Law (Boalt Hall)
Room 140

With more than 200 schools in at least 44 states already participating, "Guantánamo: How Should We Respond?" is an unprecedented collaborative effort of academia, journalism, religion, medicine and even the military in exploring the Government's detention policy and practices in the "war on terror."

The program is part of a National Teach-In taking place on October 5 at schools around the country via the internet. The panels include leading journalists, lawyers, activists, and military officers. Our program combines internet broadcasts with live discussions among audience members. For more information on the National Teach-In please visit: <http://law.shu.edu/guantanamoteachin/>

Guantánamo Bay National Teach-In Activities scheduled at UC Berkeley School of Law (Boalt Hall) Room 140

9 – 9:15 Welcome.
Overview of daily schedule

9:15-10 Opening Remarks

10:-11:15 Journalists Look
Behind the Wire

11:15-11:45 Discussion

11:45-12 Habeas Interlude:
Insults to Religion

12 -1 Break

1:-2:15 American Detention
Policy: The Next Frontier

2:15-3:30 The Military and the
Commander in Chief

3:30-4 Discussion

4-4:15 Habeas Interlude:
Voices of Guantánamo

4:15-5:15 Closing:
Guantánamo and American
Foreign Relations