A clear lesson from the global economic meltdown is that corporate governance and ethics matter. Less clear are the steps to improving how financial firms operate. Join a panel of UC Berkeley professors to explore and respond to questions such as: How should executives incorporate potential global and long term impacts into their business decisions? Are the recent announcements of bonuses to financial executives a sign of economic recovery or continued ethical lapses?

CLE Ethics credit will be available.

John Quigley, Moderator
Goldman School of Public Policy

Richard Buxbaum
Berkeley Law

Ernesto Dal Bó
Haas Business School

David Vogel
Haas Business School

Christopher Kutz
Berkeley Law

Tuesday, December 1, 2009
12:30 - 1:45pm
UC Berkeley School of Law
Boalt Hall, Room 105