

Jameel Jaffer is a Deputy Legal Director at the American Civil Liberties Union, and he oversees the ACLU's work relating to free speech, privacy, technology, national security, and international human rights. Since he joined the staff of the ACLU in 2002, Jaffer has litigated many leading cases relating to national security and human rights, including cases concerning surveillance, torture, rendition, and "targeted killing." He has argued in multiple appeals courts, as well as in the U.S. Supreme Court, and he has testified before Congress on multiple occasions concerning issues relating to counterterrorism policy and civil liberties. He co-led the litigation that resulted in the public disclosure of the Bush administration's "torture memos," and more recently he led the litigation that resulted in the public disclosure of the Obama administration's "drone memo." In recent months, his writing has been published in the New York Times, the Guardian, and Politico. He is a graduate of Williams College, Cambridge University, and Harvard Law School.

Bill Roller is president of the Berkeley Group Education Foundation, a nonprofit that produces symposia on ethics and human rights and conducts research in group process as it relates to social justice. He is co-creator with Philip Zimbardo of the film series, Group Dynamics and the New Heroism: The Ethical Alternative to the Stanford Prison Experiment.

Robert H. Cole

Professor of Law Emeritus, Berkeley

Robert H. Cole is Professor of Law Emeritus at Berkeley Law. He is a graduate of Harvard College and Harvard Law School, where he was Book Review Editor of the Harvard Law Review. He clerked at the U.S. Supreme Court for Justice Sherman Minton and served as an attorney-advisor in the Office of the Secretary of the Air Force. He practiced in the private sector in Washington and Boston before coming in 1961 to Berkeley, where he has taught Ethics, Constitutional Law, and Torts for many years. He is co-author of course materials on Ethics.

Mark Danner is a writer and reporter who has covered war and conflict for three decades, reporting on Central America, Haiti, the Balkans and the Middle East, among other stories. He is Chancellors Professor of English and Journalism at the University of California at Berkeley and James Clarke Chace Professor of Foreign Affairs and the Humanities at Bard College. Among his books are Stripping Bare the Body: Politics Violence War; Torture and Truth; and the forthcoming Spiral: Trapped in the Forever War. Danner's work has been recognized with Three Overseas Press Awards, a National Magazine Award, an Emmy, and a MacArthur Fellowship.

Rebecca Gordon received her B.A. from Reed College and her M.Div. and Ph.D. in Ethics and Social Theory from Graduate Theological Union. She teaches in the Philosophy Department at the University of San Francisco and for the University's Leo T. McCarthy Center for Public Service and the Common Good. She is the author of Mainstreaming Torture: Ethical Approaches in the Post-9/11 United States. Prior to her academic career, she worked in a variety of national and international movements – movements for women's liberation and LGBT rights, in solidarity with poor people in Central America, against apartheid in the United States and South Africa, and opposing U.S. wars in Iraq and Afghanistan. In 1984, Gordon spent six months living in the war zones of Nicaragua and, in 1990, three months teaching desktop publishing at an anti-apartheid newspaper in Cape Town, South Africa. She is a founder of Californians for Justice, a statewide organization dedicated to the political enfranchisement of marginalized people, especially young people, poor people, and people of color.
