Berkeley Law Learning Outcomes:

The Law School has identified five competencies that students will develop by the conclusion of their legal education. Consistent with that objective, students in this course will be expected to achieve the following Berkeley Law Learning Outcomes: 1. knowledge and understanding of substantive and procedural law; 2. legal analysis and reasoning, legal research, problem-solving, and written and oral communication in the legal context; 3. exercise of proper professional and ethical responsibilities to clients and the legal system; 4. other professional skills needed for competent and ethical participation as a member of the legal profession; and 5. using the law to solve real-world problems and to create a more just society.

Required Texts:

Hecht, Effective Depositions 2nd ed. (ABA 2010) ("Hecht")

Hecht, Scoops v. Business-Aide-Inc.: A Liability and Damages Case File 5th ed. (2009) ("Scoops")

Note: The Scoops case file will be provided by the instructor in class. Due to budget constraints, large volume copying is no longer provided by the Law School at no cost to students. "Hard" copies of the Scoops case file are being provided to each student at my cost of copying, without the mark up charged by the Law School bookstore for course readers. The cost per student is $25.00. Payment either in cash or by check, made to the order of Henry L. Hecht, should be made by no later than the fourth class of the semester on Tuesday, September 10, 2019.

2018 Federal Rules of Civil Procedure (LexisNexis) and 2018 Federal Rules of Evidence (LexisNexis)

Note: "Pocket" editions of both Rules will be provided by the instructor at no cost to you, compliments of LexisNexis.

Grading:

The course is graded using the standard, mandatory Berkeley Law curve. Grading is based on the following: 1. class participation (40%), as described below; and 2. the Final Paper (60%).

The components of class participation include: 1. your attendance; 2. your preparation for, and active participation in, class, including three short in-class witness preparation and deposition exercises, six longer in-class deposition role plays, a number of problem sets on witness preparation and deposition practice, two post-role play debriefings, and two video review meetings per student with me; 3. the timely receipt and the quality of two written self-critiques, one of your video recorded performance as a taker and one of your video recorded performance as a defender; 4. the timely receipt and the quality of your Initial Skills Inventory and the Final Skills Assessment; 5. the timely receipt of your Final Paper; and 6. following the format detailed in Assignments when submitting papers. In addition, throughout the semester, you will be evaluated on your demonstration of an understanding of and ability to use effective deposition skills, including preparing a witness and yourself for a deposition as well as taking and defending a deposition. (Note: This course is not “blind graded.”)

The Final Paper asks you to critique the performance of both the taker and also the defender based on your review of two separate deposition transcripts.

Class Credits and Hours, Attendance Policy, and the Drop/Add Period:

This course is for three (3) credits. The course meets on Tuesdays from 3:35 p.m. to 6:15 p.m., unless otherwise announced.

Attendance at the first class is mandatory for all students seeking admission. Students who do not attend the first day of class without prior permission of the instructor will be dropped from the class.

Due to the use of role play exercises throughout the semester, which depend on each student playing an assigned role, class attendance and thorough preparation are mandatory. Because of the use of role plays as a key part of the pedagogy of the course, absences are extremely difficult to make up. Unexcused absences and/or lateness to class will be noted and will result in a lower grade. Two or more unexcused absences and/or lateness to class will endanger your passing the course. If you are going to be absent or late for any reason, please notify me as soon as possible before class so that I may plan accordingly.

In addition, due to the use of role plays throughout the course and the need to determine the members of the class as soon as possible, the usual provisions of "Drop/Add" do not apply. If admitted, you must let me know whether you will enroll by no later than Friday afternoon, August 23, 2019, the last day of the first full week of classes for the fall semester.

Prerequisites or Co-requisites:

US Civil Procedure at a US Law School. Although not required, completion of, or concurrent enrollment in, Evidence is recommended.

Berkeley Law Policy re Credit Hours:

A “credit hour” at Berkeley Law is an amount of work that reasonably approximates three to four hours of work per week for 15 weeks, including: 1. classroom time; 2. time spent preparing for class; 3. time spent studying for, and taking, final exams; 4. time spent researching, writing, and revising papers and other written work; and 5. time spent preparing for and completing any other final project, presentation, or performance. For the purposes of these calculations, 50 minutes of classroom instruction counts as one hour, and the 15 weeks includes the exam period. You should expect to spend this amount of time per credit hour per week on out-of-class, course related work, as described above.

Berkeley Law Policy re Exam and Classroom Accommodations:

Because the Law School is committed to anonymous grading, Student Services schedules all exams, including accommodated exams. Individual faculty do not have the authority to reschedule exams. Any student who seeks an accommodated or rescheduled exam for documented medical reasons or for religious observance should contact Kyle Valenti, Director of Student Services (kvalenti@law.berkeley.edu). (Note: As noted above, this course has a final paper, not a final exam.)

In addition, students who need classroom accommodations or who want to discuss implementation of their accommodations in this class should contact Kyle Valenti as soon as possible.

Individual Video Critiques:

During the deposition role plays, pairs of takers and defenders will be video recorded; and their videos will be posted on bCourses for their review and written self-critique. I will then meet with pairs of takers and defenders in a private video review session. By the end of the semester, I will meet with each student two times, once for a video review session regarding your performance as a taker and once regarding your performance as a defender.

Court Reporters and Transcripts of Your Depositions:

Through arrangements with Ana Fatima Costa Consulting (www.anafatimacosta.com), student court reporters will attend the four deposition role plays and transcribe the testimony. The court reporters will then provide you with a rough transcript of your depositions at no cost to you. By the end of the semester, you will receive eight (8) transcripts, four (4) in your role as a taker and four (4) in your role as a defender.

Reading your deposition transcripts is yet another important way to learn effective deposition practice. I encourage you to read your transcripts with care as soon as possible after you receive them.

Undergraduates to Play the Roles of the Witnesses:

In order to make the witness preparation and deposition role plays as realistic as possible, I am working hard to recruit undergraduate Legal Studies majors to play the roles of the witnesses. If I am unsuccessful, students on each side of the case will rotate in the role of the witness.

Personal Electronics in the Classroom:

This class is an interactive one. Critical to its pedagogy is the active participation of every student. The expectation in this class is that if you are using any personal electronics, including computers, tablets, cell phones, or other handheld devices during class, you are using them in “good faith” to enhance your learning experience in this class and not for any other purpose. If it turns that the use of personal electronics is interfering with the quality of class, we will need to revisit their use in the classroom.

Journals:

I recommend—but do not require—that you keep a personal journal throughout the semester. You will find that journal writing is yet another important way to enrich your learning experience. Much of your learning in this class will be through self-critique—reflecting on your subjective experience in a structured learning environment. A journal will help you to facilitate the integration of your subjective experience with the content of the course. A journal will also allow you to follow your progress and may be useful to you as a practicing attorney as you look back on your experience in this class.

There is no one way to keep a journal, and you do not need to spend excessive time writing. Entries can be short. Track your attitudes about your lawyering skills—the theories, the practice, your style, and that of your classmates. It is best to record your thoughts as soon as possible so that the experience is fresh in your mind. Your journal will assist you in "learning by doing." Journals are personal and confidential and, thus, will not be collected.

Finally, as a practical note, I recommend that you keep your journal in a three-ring notebook. The notebook can also be used to hold the Scoops case file and other class handouts.
