

COMPARATIVE CONSTITUTIONAL LAW: THE CASE OF ISRAEL

Prof. Ori Aronson

The course will provide an introduction to topics in constitutional theory and to the comparative study of constitutional law, using the case of Israeli constitutionalism as an instructive source for engagement and reflection. Issues to be covered include constitutional design, national identity, separation of powers, judicial review, human rights, rule of law and national security, and state and religion. While all of these arise in any contemporary constitutional democracy, the Israeli experience provides unique perspectives and illustrations, which will be explored critically throughout the course.

For more information on the courses that the Berkeley Institute has to offer, email us at berkeley_institute@law.berkeley.edu

BerkeleyLaw
UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA

Berkeley Institute for
Jewish Law and Israel Studies

COMPARATIVE CONSTITUTIONAL LAW: THE CASE OF ISRAEL

Spring, 2016
Legal Studies

Legal St 174,
4 Units CCN 51656

Instructor:
Prof. Ori
Aronson

Tues/Thurs
3:30-5,
B51
Hildebrand