J.S.D. Program - Faculty Advisor Guidelines

The Advanced Degree Programs Office offers the following guidelines to serve as a starting point for clear and regular communication about expectations between J.S.D. faculty advisors and their students.

ADVISOR RESPONSIBILITIES:

- Serve as intellectual and professional mentors to their graduate students, such as:
 - Providing students with regular and informative evaluation of their progress and performance. A suggested minimum is meeting once a month, including: at the start of the semester to set goals including recommending and approving any needed coursework, a check-in midway through the semester, and a final meeting to review progress. It is especially important to provide students with timely and candid advice when their performance is deficient or their lack of progress might prevent them from earning their degree.
 - Chairing dissertation committee, and helping students secure additional committee members.
 - Participating in and providing guidance in preparing for the Qualifying Exam, including assembling a QE committee.
 - Helping students design research programs that take advantage of their individual interests and strengths and that can be completed in a timely manner.
 - Designing a reading list that will help the student understand the scholarly landscape in which they will be writing.
 - Encouraging students to be open about any problems in their working relationships, and being open to making accommodations to deal with such problems.
- Understand the academic and nonacademic policies that pertain to J.S.D. students, including:
 - Helping students understand J.S.D. candidacy and degree requirements and the timetable that must be met, including coursework requirements, the Qualifying Examination, and dissertation submission and approval (see attached J.S.D. Degree Requirements).
 - Alerting students to University and Law School policies including the Academic Honor Code and the Use of Human Research Subjects.
- Prepare students to be competitive in employment, by:
 - Identifying opportunities for students to attend scholarly presentations and conferences at Berkeley Law, the wider UC campus, and elsewhere.
 - Encouraging students to participate in professional meetings and publish their work.
 - Helping students develop relevant professional skills.
 - Providing a realistic view of the field and the current job market.

J.S.D. Program Requirements

(subject to change)

1. Completion of J.S.D. Legal Scholarship Seminar (1 unit, fall semester):

This seminar is designed to expose students to canonical arguments and central topics in American legal theory and serve as a regular forum for students to get guidance and feedback on their own developing research and writing. By Academic Rules Petition submitted within the first two weeks of classes and for good cause shown, a student may be permitted to substitute another similar seminar for this one.

2. Completion of the following required courses during the first year:

- One unit of J.S.D. Legal Scholarship Seminar (described above);
- At least 12 units per semester of independent study (299A in the fall and 299B in the spring) to be devoted to the student's own research.

Any additional coursework must be approved by the student's faculty adviser and the J.S.D. Program Faculty Director.

3. Submission of Fall and Spring Semester Progress Report and Course Approval forms (duration of program):

During every semester of the J.S.D. program (including the first year), a student must complete and submit a "Progress Report and Course Approval" form to the ADP Office by the CalCentral Add/Drop deadline in Fall and Spring semesters. Each semester's form must detail:

- 1) the progress the student has made toward the goals set out in his/her last report (explaining deviations from these goals, if any);
- 2) goals for the upcoming term, including a timetable for completion of those goals; and
- 3) course enrollment for the semester.

The form must be signed by the student's faculty adviser. It must also be signed by the J.S.D. Faculty Director (Laurent Mayali) to approve any coursework beyond independent study. Timely submission of Progress Report and Course Approval forms is required to maintain a student's good standing in the J.S.D. program. Late submission puts a student's status at risk.

4. Formation of Committees:

By the Spring semester of the first year, in consultation with the student's faculty adviser, the student must identify a Qualifying Exam (QE) Committee with at least 4 members and a Dissertation Committee with at least 3 members using the Higher Degrees Committee e-Form in CalCentral.

The chair of the dissertation committee should be the student's primary faculty adviser; the chair of the QE committee must be a faculty member other than the student's primary advisor. Each committee must have an Academic Senate Representative (ASR), who may be either from the law school or another department. All committee members must be members of the UC Berkeley Academic Senate (i.e., tenured or tenure-track faculty) unless an exception is granted by the Graduate Division.

5. Applying to take the Qualifying Examination:

At least three weeks before the QE is to take place, students must apply to take the exam by submitting the Higher Degree Committees/Qualifying Exam eForm in CalCentral. It is the student's responsibility to arrange a date and time for the exam that works for all committee members. The ADP Office will assist with reserving a conference room for the exam if desired.

6. Submission of Abstract/Prospectus:

Two weeks prior to taking the Qualifying Exam, the student must submit to the QE committee a substantial piece of writing outlining a proposed dissertation project, in either of the following forms:

1. A short abstract (one page), plus a table-of-contents-like outline of the dissertation as a whole, plus one chapter of minimum 20 pages; OR
2. A minimum 20-page prospectus of the dissertation, providing a detailed discussion of the questions to be addressed, relevant literature and arguments surrounding the topic, and proposed research strategy for addressing the topic.

Where the student plans to write multiple shorter papers instead of a single long paper, he or she should submit either:

1. a 20-page draft of one of the papers plus short paragraph abstracts of the other two; or
2. multiple shorter prospectus-like summaries of each paper, of a minimum of six pages each.

7. Qualifying Examination:

The QE should take place in the Spring semester of the first year (and no later than Fall semester of the second year). The focus of the examination will be on the student's proposed dissertation project. Successful passage of the QE is required before advancement to candidacy.

8. Application for Candidacy:

A student will be eligible for J.S.D. candidacy once the student has passed the QE and successfully completed all required coursework. The student must submit the Higher Degree Committees/Advancement to Candidacy eForm by the end of the semester in which the student completes candidacy requirements. If a student will be working with human subjects or animals, then the student must also complete training in human subjects research by taking and passing the online CITI Program, a basic course in the Protection of Human Research Subjects. Before beginning research, students must obtain approval for their research protocol from the Committee for Protection of Human Subjects.

9. Continuous Enrollment:

Once advanced to candidacy, students must maintain their registration by enrolling in 12 units of independent study per semester for the duration of the program. Upon advancing to candidacy, a J.S.D. candidate is expected to focus primarily on the research and writing of the dissertation.

10. Filing of Dissertation:

An electronic copy of the dissertation must be filed with the Graduate Division no later than the last day of the semester in which the student intends to graduate. A copy of the Dissertation Signature Page signed by all members of the dissertation committee must be submitted to the Registrar's Office one week before the filing deadline. The dissertation must consist of original work in the form of a monograph or three shorter papers suitable for publication, and constitute a substantial contribution to learning in the field of research. Publishable papers and article-length essays are acceptable only if incorporated into a larger argument that binds together the dissertation as a whole. Inclusion of a student's already-published work in the dissertation requires advance approval by the Graduate Division (for details, see <http://grad.berkeley.edu/academic-progress/dissertation/>). All student dissertations will be archived at the University Library.

11. Duration of the Program:

All program requirements including coursework and the dissertation are to be completed within three years. Extensions of time will be considered on a case-by-case basis; if granted, students must enroll only in independent study and may not take additional coursework. Extensions of time will not include an extension of the nonresident tuition waiver (if applicable) or any financial support from the law school, if previously awarded. After five years, candidacy will lapse and may not be reinstated except in extremely extenuating circumstances.
