Just a few reminders:

- 1) Remember to regularly check the CDO's Summer Enrichment Opportunities webpage (see below for more details). FYI -- Later this week (once details are ironed out), we will be adding information about a Thursday lunchtime practitioner speaker series, starting June 11, called "Advocating for Justice: Public Interest/Social Justice Perspectives on Lawyering."
- 2) CDO is fully staffed over the summer. Feel free to make an appointment with a CDO counselor for help in planning your summer and beyond.
- 3) While we realize it may be a real challenge this summer -- especially for those of you whose summer positions are entirely remote and/or only a month long or even less -- try to build up your professional network and establish productive working relationships with practicing attorneys who will be willing and able to serve as a reference for you in your next job search. You want to have people in your corner who can enthusiastically attest not only to your legal research and writing abilities, but also your work ethic and attitude.

Establishing these kinds of relationships is important even if you decide that you are not a good fit with your summer employer. In fact, it could be even more important in that case. If you are experiencing difficulties/potential difficulties of any kind in your summer workplace, please do not hesitate to contact us.

Those of you who are facing a shorter than expected summer work experience may want to consider supplementing it with pro bono projects, online courses, certificate programs, or other law-related activities.

CDO is compiling a list, which you can find here, of enrichment opportunities available to Berkeley law students this summer. We will continue to update this list as we become aware of new opportunities, so you might want to bookmark this page and check it regularly.

As always, please feel free to make an appointment with a CDO counselor for help in planning your summer.
