Suzanne Taylor is the Systemwide Title IX Director for the University of California. Prior to coming to UC, she was a Civil Rights Attorney for over a decade with the U.S. Department of Education, Office for Civil Rights, where she investigated complex civil rights allegations, including institution-wide sexual violence complaints. She first joined UC in November 2016 as a Title IX Principal Investigator in the Office of the President where, among other responsibilities, she conducted Title IX investigations on campuses throughout the system. As Systemwide Title IX Director, Suzanne provides direction and support for the Title IX offices on UC’s campuses. Among other roles, her office assists in implementing systemwide initiatives and best practices in harassment prevention and response.