Course description: Investors, regulators, employees, and the public are increasingly asking companies to manage their environmental and social externalities. The global pandemic, racial injustice, rising income inequality, and climate change are only intensifying these demands. Yet, precisely how inside counsel, corporate executives and boards should respond remains nebulous. This course addresses that challenge. Through a combination of focused lectures and case studies, curated readings, and in-depth interviews with 50 thought leaders, this course demonstrates how to incorporate environmental, social, and governance considerations into business and investment strategy.