

Miller Fellow: Iqra Razzaq

Faculty Sponsor: Professor Katerina Linos

Project: Career Opportunities in International Law Compilation Project

Iqra Razzaq is a 1L at Berkeley Law and interested in international human rights and refugee law. While at Berkeley, Iqra has actively worked with the International Refugee Assistance Project and the DA Accountability and Participatory Defense Project on campus. She additionally participated in the Berkeley Afghanistan Project, a pioneer project responding to the humanitarian crisis resulting from the Taliban overtaking the Afghanistan government.

Outside of the law school, Iqra works as a Legal Research Fellow under Professor Khaled Beydoun and Professor Nura Sedique on their work crafting a theory of gendered Islamophobia and the law. This summer, Iqra will work as a Legal Intern for the International Refugee Assistance Project where she'll further her work with refugees through direct client services and litigation at large. She will be working as a Miller Fellow with Professor Linos on the Career Opportunities in International Law Compilation Project.
