

VISITING SCHOLAR TALKS

ENSURING JUDICIAL INDEPENDENCE IN THE UNITED STATES AND LESSONS FOR UZBEKISTAN

SPEAKER

PROF. BOTIRJON KOSIMOV

Tashkent State University of Law

DISCUSSANT

JUDGE JEREMY FOGEL (RET.)

Executive Director of the Berkeley
Judicial Institute, Berkeley Law

Professor Botirjon Kosimov analyzes how judicial independence is ensured in the United States of America and what lessons Uzbekistan may take from these practices. The paper embraces a wide range of issues related to judicial independence, namely the history of judicial independence, its theory and relationship with judicial accountability, challenges to judicial independence, and legal foundations for ensuring judicial independence and judicial discipline. Professor Kosimov's paper also considers the role of digitalization of courts in ensuring judicial independence, which is very important in today's world.
