Miller Fellow: Emma Wexler
Faculty Sponsor: Professor Katerina Linos
Project: Career Opportunities in International Law Compilation Project

Emma Wexler is an LL.M. student at Berkeley Law. Her academic interests include international arbitration, international business transactions, and public international law.

Emma holds a Master's degree in International arbitration and international trade law from the Sorbonne University in Paris, France, and a certificate in private international law from The Hague Academy of international law. Before joining Berkeley Law, she worked in the arbitration team of a big European law firm, where she worked on various investment law and commercial arbitration cases.

As a Miller Fellow, Emma will support Professor Katerina Linos' work with both the Career Opportunities in International Law Compilation Project and with some research she is doing on international organizations in Spring 2023.
