

Miller Fellow: Selase Buatsi

Faculty Sponsor: Professor Katerina Linos

Project: Career Opportunities in International Law Compilation Project

Selase Buatsi is a JD candidate who will graduate with the class of 2025. She graduated from Rice University with a BA in Philosophy, a BA in Managerial Studies, and a minor in Business. While in undergraduate school, she worked with various offices, including the Texas Innocence Network and a small office that handles wills, estates, probate, and small business affairs. Post-graduation, she worked full-time with the US Attorney's Office for some time before applying to law school. Now that she is at Berkeley Law, Selase is excited to explore the many areas of the practice. International Law has captured her interest, and she hopes to gain further insight into the field. Selase's Miller Fellowship with Professor Linos will involve research into International Law career opportunities.
