

Miller Fellow: Jona Boçari

Faculty Sponsor: Professor Laurel E. Fletcher

Project: Investigating North-South Hierarchies in International Human Rights Practice

Jona Boçari is a third-year law student at the University of California, Berkeley. She has served as an editor for the Berkeley Journal of Criminal Law and is currently Senior Submissions Editor for the Berkeley Journal of International Law. She was also a board member of the California Asylum Representation Project which assists asylum seekers in the Bay Area with their petitions for asylum and withholding of removal.

Jona was a Morehead-Cain scholar at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and graduated with a Bachelor of Arts and Highest Honors in History and Mathematics. On campus, she was involved with the Community Empowerment Fund, a nonprofit that provides relationship-based support to people transitioning out of homelessness and poverty. In her free time, Jona enjoys solo traveling, poetry, discovering new music and keeping up with college basketball (go Tar Heels!).

As a Miller Fellow, Jona is working with Professor Laurel Fletcher on the “Investigating North-South Hierarchies in International Human Rights Practice” project.
