

Miller Fellow: Harrison Holland-McCowan

Faculty Sponsor: Professor Katerina Linos

Project: AJIL Unbound Symposium on NGEU

Harrison Holland-McCowan is a second year law student at the University of California, Berkeley. On campus, he is the managing editor of the Berkeley Journal of International Law, and was a research assistant for the International Refugee Assistance Project. During the summer of 2023, he was a programs intern at The International Center for Transitional Justice in New York City, where he focused on reparations programs for countries recovering from atrocity crimes. His research interests include international criminal law, international humanitarian law, and international human rights law. Harrison received his B.S. degree in 2017 from Cornell University, where he majored in Public Policy. Prior to attending law school, he was a case assistant at Cotchett Pitre & McCarthy LLP, after working as a screenwriter in Los Angeles, California.

As a Miller Fellow, Harrison is working with Professor Katerina Linos on the “AJIL Unbound Symposium on Next Generation EU” project.
